1. INTRODUCTION

The European Parliament and Council adopted a Recommendation on film heritage and the competitiveness of related industrial activities<sup>1</sup> (Film Heritage Recommendation) on 16 November 2005. The Recommendation launched a dynamic and transparent process of reporting from Member States and assessment by the European Commission<sup>2</sup> on the progress of matters relating to the protection of and access to European film heritage.

The principles on which the Film Heritage Recommendation is based are still valid: Cinematographic works are an essential component of our cultural heritage and therefore merit full protection. In addition to their cultural value, cinematographic works are a source of historical information about European society. They are a comprehensive record of the richness of Europe's cultural identities and the diversity of its people. Cinematographic images are a crucial element for learning about the past and for civic reflection upon our civilisation. In order to ensure that the European film heritage is passed down to future generations, it has to be systematically collected, catalogued, preserved and restored. In addition, European film heritage should be made accessible for non-commercial educational, academic, research and cultural purposes in compliance with intellectual property rights. As cinematography is an art stored on fragile material at risk of deterioration, it subsequently requires positive action from the public authorities to ensure its preservation.

The Film Heritage Recommendation also stresses that encouraging the exploitation of film heritage can contribute to improve the competitiveness of the European film industry. It also acknowledges that business activities related to film heritage could boost thanks to better use of technological developments. The digital revolution offers new exploitation windows for films, and therefore, new possibilities of business. Film Heritage Institutions (FHI), as any other digital archive, demand new highly specialised technological services, which is an opportunity for highly qualified job creation.

These principles were reconfirmed by the Council Conclusions on European film heritage, including the challenges of the digital era, adopted in November 2010<sup>3</sup>.

Nevertheless, the change in the film industry, which has evolved into a fully digital industry from production to screen<sup>4</sup>, has enormous consequences on the collection, preservation, restoration and access to film heritage. In response to these issues, the European Commission financed a study on the challenges and opportunities of the digital era for European Film Heritage, for which the final report was published in January 2012<sup>5</sup>. This report contained a list of recommendations for Member States, FHI and the European Institutions in the form of a Digital Agenda for European Film Heritage (DAEFH).

The first implementation report on the Film Heritage Recommendation was published in August 2008<sup>6</sup> and the second one in July 2010<sup>7</sup>. This third report of 2012 analyses the reports received from Member States in reply to a Commission questionnaire circulated in July 2011. All Member States' reports are available on line in English and in their original language<sup>8</sup>. A summary of the situation in each Member State in relation to each subject raised in the questionnaire is available in Annex I of this report.

The Commission has received 26 out of 27 Member States' implementation reports. The length and quality of reports varies. This report is based on Member States' reports and, therefore, it is fully dependent on the quality and quantity of the information provided.

During the reporting period, the Commission adopted on 27.10.2011 a Recommendation on the digitisation and online accessibility of cultural material and digital preservation<sup>9</sup>. It recommends the setting of clear quantitative targets for digitisation of cultural material, in line with the overall targets assigned to Europeana. It builds on the Report of the "Comité des Sages" on Bringing Europe's Cultural Heritage Online, published in January 2011. It was endorsed by Council Conclusions of 10 and 11 May 2012<sup>10</sup>. The Recommendation applies to Europe's cultural memory regardless of the format in which it is imbedded, including film heritage.

2. FILM HERITAGE CREATING OPPORTUNITIES

Increased cultural availability of heritage films and increased education on European film culture can only result in increased interest and demand of European films, both new and "old".

New technologies offer the possibility for right holders to explore new windows of exploitation and new possible revenues. To achieve that, there are several obvious conditions: Firstly, the original film material has been preserved and second that it has to be digitised at an acceptable quality. Finally, it has to be made available and accessible.

According to the DAEFH study<sup>11</sup>, it is the European FHI which have kept and restored most of the European works that have subsequently returned to TV screens or to DVDs. This is because the fragmented European film industry has not been in a position, or had the capacity, to preserve the films that they have produced. Those works kept by FHI could now be exploited digitally and on new platforms, such as VoD.

The potential for "long-tail" revenues, (typically revenues for films older than 5 years) is still largely unexploited<sup>12</sup>. Business models based on the selection of classic master pieces which are more likely to provide at least the return on the investment of digitisation could be promising.

In May 2012 France launched a support scheme for right holders willing to digitise their catalogues and distribute them digitally. It covers films released before 1 January 2000<sup>13</sup>. The subvention could cover up to 90% of the cost of restoration and digitisation of the work.

The EU MEDIA programme supports the project "Europe's Finest"<sup>14</sup>, which focusses on digital cinema distribution of European classics. According to the responsible of this project, their aim is to "improve the circulation of cinematic works by addressing the main obstacles to their diffusion: they aim to provide the knowledge on where the material is and a way of easily obtaining the rights". MEDIA contribution to the project in 2011 was EUR 400.000, around 50% of its total budget.

- Member States should encourage right holders to digitise and exploit on-line or through digital projection the master pieces of their catalogues.

- Dialogue between right-holders, on-line platforms and FHI should be supported in order to facilitate commercial exploitation of heritage master pieces.

3. ANALYSIS OF THE SITUATION OF FILM HERITAGE IN THE EU

The objective of this chapter is to analyse the situation of film heritage in Europe on the basis of Member States' reports. This shall be done by highlighting the best practices for each of the areas covered by the Recommendation, as well as by pointing out the problems encountered by the FHI. At the end of each section, a box highlights the main points and provides indications for future action.

3.1. Film Heritage Institutions

All Member States have designated one or more FHI to ensure that cinematographic works forming part of their audiovisual heritage are systematically collected, catalogued, preserved, restored and made accessible. There are around 100 national and regional FHI in the EU. There continues to be great variation in funding and human resources devoted to film heritage between Member States. For instance, more than 400 people work in France for FHI, while in countries like Ireland, Slovenia or Greece, the staff is less than 10 people. Despite the difficult economic situation budget and human resources allocations remained stable<sup>15</sup>. This is a clear signal of the importance attached from Member States to film heritage. Nevertheless, new investment would be required in order to fully exploit the opportunities offered by the digital era. In the 2010 Council Conclusions on film heritage, the Council committed to actively support FHI in all their tasks, in particular in the context of the move to a digital environment.

In general, European FHIs are directly financed by State resources. At the present economic situations, some FHI are looking for additional funding. One example is Ireland. They have launched an innovative campaign in order to raise funds for building its new preservation vaults, through an internet video<sup>16</sup>.

A good practice to underline is the "Screen Heritage UK Programme", led by the British Film Institute. Their innovative approach is to identify significant film heritage collection, regardless of the nature of organisations that holds them. So far, they have identified 18 collections held by organisations such as the National Tramways Museum or the West Yorkshire Policy Imaging Unit.

As defined by Association of European Cinematheques<sup>17</sup> (ACE), the role of a film archive is "to receive the final products of a film production chain, whatever their technical format and properties, and keep them for ever. (...). Films are being made in a new way and they will have to be archived in a new way. Active film archives will have to go digital"<sup>18</sup>.

Even if cinema has entered the digital era, only a minority of Member States have introduced the necessary organisational changes to adapt to it. Some good examples to mention are:

- Hungary: the Hungarian National Archive was restructured to become the Hungarian National Digital Archive and Film Institute in September 2011. In addition to traditional film heritage tasks, its mission includes to digitise the entire Hungarian cultural heritage, preserve it in digital form and ensure that it is widely accessible.

- Poland: competences centres have been established with the mission to coordinate the digitisation of cultural resources. They have also prepared a catalogue of good practice in the digitisation of archive material.

- State resources devoted to film heritage remain stable, despite the economic situation.

- New investment and organizational changes are required in order to fully exploit the opportunities of the digital era for film heritage, as well as ensuring that digital film heritage will be collected and preserved.

3.2. Collection

3.2.1. Legal and contractual deposit

Member States ensure the systematic collection of cinematographic works that make up part of their audiovisual heritage through:

- Legal deposit: Czech Republic, Denmark, Finland, France, Hungary, Italy, Luxembourg, Malta, Poland, Slovakia (10 Member States).

---

<sup>16</sup> <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=EarCLUQJbTQ>

- Compulsory deposit of cinematographic works that have received public funding (so-called contractual deposit): Austria, Bulgaria, French and Flemish speaking Communities of Belgium, Cyprus, Estonia, Germany, Greece, Ireland, Latvia, Lithuania, The Netherlands, Portugal, Romania, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden and United Kingdom (17 Member States).

The Royal Film Archive of Belgium operates also on the basis of voluntary deposits for films of all nationalities.

A problem for a number of Member States continues to be the enforcement of the deposit obligation (Bulgaria, Poland). Best practices to deal with this problem include:

- For legal deposit: "watchdog units" (for instance, in Finland or France). In Finland, non-compliance with the deposit obligation is a punishable act for which a fine can be imposed.

- For compulsory deposit of works that have received public funding: Payment of the State aid is conditional to the deposit (Spain, Cyprus, Greece, Italy). This good practice was introduced in Hungary during the reporting period. A full chapter is devoted to the link between film funding policy and film heritage below.

Most Member States report that they perform quality checking of the deposited material. In some cases, there is an enforcement of this obligation (for instance, in Sweden). This good practice should be generalised. Latvia has included in its new Film Law, which entered into force in June 2010, the deposit requirements contained in the Film Heritage Recommendation. Nevertheless, they complain that the deposit obligation is not yet fully enforced due to lack of coordination between the funding bodies and the archive.

3.2.2. Voluntary deposit

Voluntary deposit continues to be extremely important for enriching the collections with foreign films, metadata or film related materials. It is essential that contracts are signed between the archive and the right holder, clearly defining the rights and obligations of each party. In this context, the Commission facilitated the signature of a model contract<sup>19</sup> between the Association of European Film Archives (ACE) and the International Federation of Film Producers Associations (FIAPF). Only a small number of Member States use the contract or at least the principles contained in it (Czech Republic, Greece, Lithuania, The Netherlands and Portugal). Some Member States have established their own contracts, for instance the "Centre National de la Cinématographie" (CNC) in France.

The Austrian Film Museum reports a considerable increase in the number of works deposited thanks to an active policy of encouraging voluntary deposit by film artists, producers and distributors. The deposit contracts provide for the right to screen the films during film programmes and training activities. Slovakia also reports that extensive collections were acquired through voluntary deposit.

Denmark highlights that encrypted digital distribution of non-European films jeopardizes the voluntary deposit practice. They highlight the need of establishing a new foundation for the voluntary deposit of foreign films, following the change to digital distribution. Foreign films are distributed encrypted, which makes their preservation impossible.

3.2.3. Film heritage collection in the digital era

As mentioned above, "the role of a film archive is to receive the final products of a film production chain, whatever their technical format and properties, and keep them forever".

As a consequence of the digital revolution, the definition of national film heritage has evolved. In its collection policy, revised in November 2011, the British Film Institute defines film as: "a moving image work crafted to express an idea or tell a story – fictional, factual or artistic – regardless of production process, recording medium or distribution channel."

Some countries (Czech Republic, Lithuania, Spain, and United Kingdom) have updated the legal instruments establishing the legal or compulsory deposits in order to also cover films produced on digital support. For others (Austria, Belgium Flemish Community, Finland, France, Denmark, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, Slovakia, Slovenia, Sweden), the collection of digital material is possible in the framework of existing deposit obligations, so they do not need to update them. Nevertheless, some countries do not yet collect films on digital support (Portugal) or do not have the facilities to store them (Ireland).

Some Member States have already changed their collection practices to adapt them to new channels of distribution. A best example is Sweden. It has reformed its definition of national film heritage to include all films regardless of whether they will be shown in cinemas or on not<sup>20</sup>. The aim is to take into account new forms of cinema distribution and to cover films that, for instance, will be only released on VoD.

The International Federation of Film Archives (FIAF) establishes that only a "Digital Cinema Distribution Master" (DCDM) or an unencrypted "Digital Cinema Package" (DCP) are acceptable formats for the long-term preservation of a cinema work.

At present, procedures for the collection of digital material vary among FHI. Sweden has applied new criteria and standards for collection of digitally distributed films since January 2012<sup>21</sup>: DCI-standard<sup>22</sup> DCDM's and a few other Digital Master elements according to specific criteria, and DCI-standard DCP's in unencrypted formats. The British Film Institute prefers to collect digital masters in DPX format or DCDM to SMPTE standard. They do not prefer DCPs, as they are highly compressed. If they accept DCPs, they must be unencrypted.

<sup>20</sup> Sweden defines national heritage as anything screened in cinemas, or that has received production subsidy from the SFI. Meaning, if a film has received funding support from SFI, they will preserve it whether it has been screened in cinemas or not. If a film has not received subsidy from SFI, they only collect what has been screened in cinemas.

<sup>22</sup> Digital Cinema Initiative: Body formed by the Hollywood majors to create voluntary specifications for digital cinema, <http://www.dcinovies.com/>

The period for deposit of the film varies enormously, from the moment on completion of the film (Slovenia) to 2 years after release (Spain) or no deadline for deposit. The DAEFH study<sup>23</sup> explains that the rationale beyond a long deadline for deposit was to allow the deposit of the distribution copy and eliminate the cost of producing a duplication copy<sup>24</sup>. In the case of digital distribution, the cost of deposit of a digital master is negligible, so this long deadline is not necessary. In addition, the risk that the digital file is damaged or lost increases exponentially with time. Therefore, the DAEFH study recommends shortening the deadline for deposit. Producers and distributors could see this early deposit as short of "insurance" for their works.

Finally, the DAEFH study recommends considering the adoption of a European standard for the deposit and submission of digital cinema content to FHI.

- The digital era changes the definition of film heritage, which is now independent of its production process, recording medium (film, digital file, ...) and its distribution channel (theatrical distribution, VoD, ...). The definition contained in the Film Heritage Recommendation<sup>25</sup> needs to be updated in order to catalyse a change in Member States

- All Member States have legal or contractual deposit systems for the collection of film heritage, but the enforcement of these mechanisms needs to be improved in many cases. In the case of contractual deposit, a good practice to extend is to reserve the final payment of the aid until the deposit takes place and it is certified by a FHI.

- In case of voluntary deposit, the signature of contracts between the film archive and the rights holder, specifying the rights and obligations of each of the parties is a good practice. The ACE/FIAFP framework contract provides a useful model.

- FHI need to update their collection policy to deal with digital films. In addition of adapting to the new definition of digital film, they should establish very short deadlines for deposit and ensure that only unencrypted digital files are deposited.

3.3. Interoperability of film databases

Following a standardisation mandate from the European Commission to the European Committee for Standardization (CEN), CEN produced two European Standards to facilitate interoperability of film databases:

- EN 15744:2009 "Film Identification – Minimum metadata set for cinematographic works";
- EN 15907:2010 "Film Identification – Enhancing interoperability of metadata – Element sets and structures".

In addition, CEN published the "Guidelines for implementation of EN 15744 and EN 15907"<sup>26</sup> in February 2012. An on-line platform for helping in the application of the standards is available on <http://filmstandards.org>.

The Commission has financed a project promoting the use of these European standards on the interoperability of film databases under the EU programme "ICT Standardization". Thanks to this project, 4 workshops have been organised in 2010 and 2011 in Rome, Copenhagen, Prague and Paris. Two additional events were organised in Tallinn and Valencia in December 2011 at the expenses of the organizers. Some of these workshops were also attended by representative from the U.S. Library of Congress<sup>27</sup> and the U.S. Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences<sup>28</sup>, who were interested in these innovative standards.

A large number of FHI have implemented or plan to implement the European standards. One of the driving forces behind this success of the standards is the EU-funded project European Film Gateway (EFG), as it uses an exchange format based on an early draft of EN 15907. Therefore, the 15 FHI contributing to the EFG apply totally or partially the standards.

For the British Film Institute (BFI), the first priority is to ensure institutional interoperability so that information can be shared with other organisations, supporting the widest possible access through a network of collections. For that reason, their newly created "Collections Information Database" complies with the European standards.

In the case of Lithuania, EU structural funds are co-financing a new information system for film documents as part of the project "Lithuanian documentaries on Internet" (e-Cinema). This system will allow not only access but will also act as a service for the ordering of copies of film documents.

According to Poland, preservation of metadata will be of key importance in the future for the preservation of valuable digital items in the long-term. However, the archives lack relevant tools for tracking the "life cycle" of a digitised or digital cultural item (from creation or inclusion in the collection through conservation to digitisation and reformatting throughout its useful life).

- Preservation of metadata is key for long term preservation and access to collections. Therefore, it should be collected, kept and updated.
- The European standards on interoperability of film databases published in 2009 and 2010 are largely used in the EU. They have facilitated European projects such as EFG or EFG 1914. Their application should be extended.

3.4. Preservation of analogue and digital films

As stated by ACE: "If preservation is not performed properly, there will be no heritage to show and give access to".

The switch to digital cinema means that FHI are evolving towards hybrid archives taking care of both analogue and digital collections. Preserving digital film is completely different from preserving analogue film: In the analogue world, taking care of the physical carrier equals taking care of the content. Digital archiving is about preserving the content, regardless of the carrier.

This implies that, on the one hand, depositories ensuring optimum temperature and humidity conditions for physical films need to be maintained and improved<sup>29</sup>. A good example in this area is Austria, which opened a new nitrate film depot in 2010. Or Finland, which is renovating its film storage archive. Sweden has acquired new equipment to make analogue preservation and screening elements following the bankruptcy of photochemical laboratories in the country. Portugal underlines the need to maintain infrastructures of know-how related to analogue technology. The film heritage of the 20th century, basically produced with photochemical technology, cannot be conserved for the future using digital media. This was summarised by the FIAF slogan "do not throw film away".

On the other hand, new long-term preservation systems for digital film have to be put in place. These new systems require completely different technology, facilities, technical skills, management and mind-set compared to preservation of analogue film.

Most FHI have not received additional funding to take care of preservation of digital film, which puts this heritage at risk. Ireland reports that, as digital distribution becomes more common, production companies would like to deposit DCPs, but the Irish Film Archive has no way to store them. As mentioned above, in order to deal with the shortage of public funding, Ireland has put in place an innovative crowd-sourcing fund-raising system, through a promotional internet video<sup>30</sup>.

In addition to additional resources, strategies and planning for digital preservation are also necessary. Some Member States, such as Finland and Denmark, are already working on them. The EYE Film institute in the Netherlands has opted to outsource its digital storage to a private company.

A best practice to extend is updating archival policies in order to include digital preservation. A good example is the new Swedish archival policy<sup>31</sup>, established in March 2011. In Sweden, films that only exist as DCP or DCDM are preserved as JPEG2000 and wav files and stored on LTO data tapes in two different tape robots with separate locations.

The EU-funded research project "EDCine"<sup>32</sup>, that run from June 2006 to June 2009, proposed a model for management of digital film archives. The project resulted in software solutions that are now commercially available to archives (and used in the EFG1914 project) and based ISO standards on file formats for long term conservation of moving images.

The DAEFH<sup>33</sup> study identifies some areas where research could be considered in order to improve archive stability and durability as well as archive content security. These include:

- Archive design able to survive a "power off";
- Systems and architectures optimised to preserve collections with characteristic specific to cinema content, that could be developed as open-source services;
- Development of stable digital formats and supports, with a longer shelf live;
- Feasibility of a European managed "Cloud", that would meet the storage and access requirements of all the cinema industry segments;
- Content security in a "cloud" based distributed architecture;
- Digital archive security other than content encryption.

- Preservation of digital film is a new task for FHI. Additional resources and skills are required. Innovative ways of financing this should be experimented with.
- Archival policies have to be updated in order to include digital preservation.
- Further research is needed in order to improve the stability, durability and security of digital archives.
- Resources, facilities and skills for the preservation of analogue film need to be continued and improved.

3.5. Restoration

According to the DAEFH study, digital restoration is a "mature field", with few specialised software solutions available to correct damage and flaws in image and sound. While costs are rapidly decreasing in terms of hardware / software, costs are still high because of the incidence of manpower being used to perform tasks which cannot be automated.

A best practice to highlight is the bi-annual FIAF film restoration summer school in Bologna<sup>34</sup>. Participants are trained in the use of the newest digital equipment for the preservation and restoration of film heritage, on digital strategies for access to material and on analogue restoration techniques.

3.6. Digitisation of collections

Most European film heritage institutions are in the process of digitising part of their collections with the purpose of providing on-line access or allowing digital projection. Some good examples are:

- The Netherlands has put in place the project "Images for the Future"<sup>35</sup> (2007-2014);
- Spain is digitising valuable films from 1896 to 1930 in 2K resolution for digital screening.

FHIs underline that the original film material always has to be preserved.

According to FHIs, the two obstacles to digitisation of European film collections continue to be:

- lack of funding;
- high cost in money and time for clearing rights.

The European Film Gateway (EFG) project is an "aggregator" for Europeana in the film domain. 15 film heritage institutions from 14 European countries are already content contributors to the EFG. All these Member States mention the EFG as a driving force behind their digitisation efforts. The new project EFG1914<sup>36</sup> counts with 20 contributors.

Audiovisual content (defined here as any sound and/or video item) is particularly appealing for users. Europeana currently provides access to 450,974 sound (2% of total) and 167,983 video items (0.75% of total). The Commission Recommendation on the digitisation and online accessibility of cultural material and digital preservation<sup>37</sup> sets an overall target for Europeana of access to 30 million digital items by 2015, including 2 million audiovisual items. In order to reach this target, Member States should include moving images including film in their national digitisation strategies. It is to note that some FHI are getting equipped to make digitisation in-house (Denmark, Sweden), according to their own calendar. In some Member states, film heritage has been included in national digitisation strategies, in close cooperation with the national library.

The DAEFH study<sup>38</sup> pointed out to the need of further research in scanning technologies specifically adapted to archival and degraded films. This would help to reduce the cost of digitisation.

According to the DAEFH study, there is 1 million hours of films that could be digitized in the holdings of all European FHI. ACE estimates that only around 1,5% of holdings are digitized.

- Most FHI have some digitisation activities of their holdings with the purpose of providing access. ACE estimates that only around 1,5% of holdings are digitized.

<sup>36</sup> EFG1914 is a digitisation project focusing on films and non-film material from and related to World War I. It started on 15 February 2012 and runs for two years. <http://project.efg1914.eu/>

- Lack of funding and complexity of clearing copy-right and related rights are obstacles to digitisation.
- Member States should include film heritage in their national digitisation strategies, with the view to increase film content in Europeana.
- Further research in scanning technologies for archival films could result in a reduction of digitisation costs.

3.7. Digital cinema and film heritage

According to Member States' replies, around 14 Member States have equipped (Austria, Belgium, Greece, Ireland, Luxembourg, Poland, Spain, Sweden) or plan to equip (Czech Republic, Denmark, Hungary, Romania, Slovakia, Slovenia) their cinematheques with digital projection equipment. Some of the cinematheques are also considered as "art and essay" cinemas, and therefore, can benefit from national or EU funding for digitisation (Hungary, Slovakia). 3 Member States (Lithuania, Malta, Portugal) have not digitised the screens of their FHI and there are no plans to do so. The situation in the remaining Member States is known.

Digital projection also offers the possibility of projecting heritage films beyond the cinematheques, provided that catalogue films are digitised. In Spain and Sweden, high quality digital film copies of the analogue collections will be produced for use in cinemas. As explained by the BFI, the transition to digital technology in cinemas worldwide will soon make it difficult to show traditional motion picture film of any kind. Therefore, cinematheques need to shift format for theatrical exhibition, by digitising films. Digitisation projects should take into account the higher resolution required for digital projection.

Digital cinema represents a –particularly good opportunity for the educational sector, as films can be downloaded without need of transfer of physical copies.

- Cinematheques need to get equipped with digital projectors, so they can project digitised films or what in some years will be film heritage only available on digital support.

3.8. Access to collections

New technologies create new possibilities to allow access to collections to a wider public. This offers enormous possibilities for education, recreation and cultural uses.

Traditionally, the main role of FHI was preservation. For some years, however, FHI have been increasing their efforts to also facilitate access to their collections. This change is driven both by technological changes and by societal demand. A clear example of this movement is the new BFI Collection Policy of November 2011<sup>39</sup>. It states that "preservation and access have equal priority as objectives". Another example is Finland, where there is a specific budget to promote accessibility and media education.

FHI provide access to film heritage in many different ways, both traditional and through new technologies. Cultural and educational use of film heritage is provided by film heritage institutions in agreement with right-holders:

- Screening of films in a non-commercial context in the cinematheques;
- Rental or sale of DVD of restored or rare films;
- Television broadcasting of classic films;
- Organizing or supporting film heritage festivals (Bologna, Pordenone);
- Specific sections in film festivals devoted to film heritage. For instance, the Berlinale offers a film heritage "Retrospective"<sup>40</sup> section in cooperation with the Deutsche Kinemathek;
- Non-commercial VoD services;
- Films or extracts available for streaming in the FHI's website. The EYE Film Institute in The Netherlands, BFI<sup>41</sup> and the Deutsches Filminstitut<sup>42</sup> (DFI) have even created their own YouTube channels.
- Monthly magazines and newsletters. Many FHIs<sup>43</sup> utilise social media to communicate with cinephiles and promote their activities.
- Almost all film heritage institutions have websites in their own language and in English, which allows international visibility of their activities.

The EU MEDIA programme finances the Europa Film Treasures<sup>44</sup> on-line platform since 2008<sup>45</sup>. Its aim is to "open a new window on the meticulous and devoted work of European film archives". Since its creation, it totalizes 19 million of pages viewed, 1.8 million visitors and almost 2 million films viewings. 30 film archives representing 19 countries propose a selection of 149 films from 1896 to 1999. Users can view the films free of charge.

- New technologies give new possibilities of broader access to film heritage. Some Member states already give the same weight to preservation and access in terms of objectives.
- FHI and rights holders should continue to explore and expand online access to collections, in order to meet the cultural and educational demand in compliance with intellectual property rights, without prejudice to fair remuneration for the right holders and without interfering with the normal use of the film.

<sup>45</sup> MEDIA contribution to the project in 2011 was EUR 150.000, which represents 50% of the budget.

3.9. Education / Film literacy

The situation remains very similar to 2009. The European Commission is carrying out a study on film literacy<sup>46</sup>. Throughout 2012, a consortium of agencies from across Europe, led by BFI, Film Education, and the London University Institute of Education, in the UK, will be compiling a picture of film education in every nation in the EU and EEA. Film literacy is defined as "the level of understanding of a film, the ability to be conscious and curious in the choice of films and the competence to critically watch a film and to analyse its content, cinematography and technical aspects." One of the aspects of this study is the involvement of FHI in film literacy.

Educational use of film heritage is possible only after having obtained the agreement of the right-holders. In Finland, production companies and the copyright association for audiovisual producers have given permission to schools for using film records for educational purposes since 2006 in exchange of an annual fee. In The Netherlands, there are also agreements with the right-holders' organizations for the use of audiovisual sources in the Dutch Institute for Film Education and the Media Awareness Expertise Centre.

Almost all European film heritage institutions devote resources to promote education and film literacy sector in many different ways:

- Screenings for schools at the cinematheques;
- Heritage films shown by schools and libraries;
- Teaching material on films available for primary and secondary school teachers;
- Specific training for primary or secondary teachers at the FHI;
- Free access for students to the cinematheque;
- Specific screenings for young audiences;
- Film festivals for children;
- Cooperation with universities and higher education institutions in the field of cinema;
- Regular courses and conferences at the FHI on the history of cinema.

Three best practices to report are:

- Poland is very active in the use of new technologies for providing school access to film heritage<sup>47</sup>, through its project "School Film Archive". Poland reports however that copyright holders are generally unwilling to sign long-term agreements for educational use of their films. Most frequently, they offer licenses for specific screenings.

- The BFI has launched its "5-19 Education scheme" for 2013-2017<sup>48</sup>. Film education is an integral part of the BFI's future strategies.

- Swedish "Film i skolan"<sup>49</sup> project: The Swedish Film Institute financially supports film educational work in schools and communities across the country.

- Most FHI devote resources to film literacy and education.

- Some Member States are already exploiting the possibilities offered by on-line access for film education. This practice should be extended.

- Mechanisms for facilitating the educational use of films from a right-clearance perspective should be found in order to boost film literacy.

3.10. Professional training

Professional training in the area of film heritage seems to continue to be a problem, as several Member States report that there is a lack of specialised courses. The situation has not improved since the adoption of the last report. On the contrary, the situation has become more difficult, as new digital competences have to be developed, at the same time that photochemical competences have to be maintained.

Often, the professional training is done in-house, as only some limited European professional training is available. A best practice to highlight is the bi-annual FIAF summer school in Bologna<sup>50</sup>. The last one took place in June 2012. Another good practice is the Spanish annual seminars aimed at training film heritage professionals, with the last one taking place in the Basque Film Library in November 2011 on the topic of "audiovisual preservation at the start of the digital era".

The EYE Film Institute in The Netherlands has created new positions in their organization to deal specifically with digital technologies and digital access. At the same time, photochemical competences also have to be preserved. Spain underlines that school cinemas and universities lack knowledge about photochemical preservation and restoration.

In Sweden, the last photochemical laboratory ceased its operations in 2011. The Swedish Film Institute acquired part of the equipment and hired some of their technicians. Since June 2012 they are operating their own photochemical duplications and restorations in-house.

The questionnaire explored the possibility of temporary exchange of staff among FHI as a way of improving professional skills. Most of the FHI were favourable to the idea in principle, but they thought that it would be difficult in practice due to the shortage of staff.

<sup>48</sup> <http://www.bfi.org.uk/education-research/5-19-film-education-scheme-2013-2017> , The main elements of the scheme are: a world-class digital platform for young people, teachers, parents and learners, a single integrated film education program including activities and support across the UK which should be available to all 27,600 schools, to cinemas, youth organizations and community groups and The Youth Film Academy Network..

- Professional training on film heritage faces two challenges: create new digital competences and maintain the analogue competences.

- Very limited professional training on film heritage. Training is mainly done in-house.

3.11. Film funding policy and film heritage

More than EUR 2 billion was devoted by EU Member States to film funding in 2009. In the same year, 1185 feature films were produced in the EU<sup>51</sup>.

According to the DAEFH study<sup>52</sup>, the investment required for preserving safely all new productions is EUR 1.5 million per year. The cost of digital preservation of the entire European film heritage, if it was completely digitised, would be between EUR 147 million and EUR 263 million per year. This means, that the annual cost of digital preservation of new and historical European film productions would be 3,25% of the annual EU Member States financial support to film production.

The Council Conclusions on European film heritage of November 2010 invited Member States to make sure that film heritage preservation is fully part of national or regional film policy. In particular, it invited them to:

- "ensure that films that have been supported by national or regional funds are deposited with a FHI and encourage, when feasible, the deposit of all related material;
- ensure, in compliance with intellectual property rights, without prejudice to fair remuneration for the right holders and without interfering with the normal use of the film, that film heritage institutions can enjoy appropriate rights in relation to the preservation and cultural non-commercial use of films supported by national and regional funds as well as of related material".

As far as deposit is concerned and as explained in section 3.2, some Member States have introduced the practice of paying the last instalment of the subsidy only after the film archive has certified the deposit of the film. This has proved to be a very efficient instrument for enforcing the contractual deposit obligation. In addition to that, Sweden also foresees that producers cannot apply for new funding until the deposit takes place.

In relation to cultural and educational uses, there are already some good practices to note in this field:

- Denmark: According to the Danish law on legal deposit<sup>53</sup>, deposited films, which have received subsidy according to the Film Law, can be shown to a paying audience as part of the institute's film cultural activities (...) The Danish Film Institute stipulates, in accordance with the preservation obligation, the terms for preservation/storage and use of the material that a producer has delivered and subsequently requests for loan.

- Spain: The Spanish legislation<sup>54</sup> requires that beneficiaries of public funding must give a perfect copy of the film subject of the aid to the Spanish Film Archives. The film can be used by the Institute of Cinematography and Audiovisual Arts for foreign promotion and also in the Institute's website for promotion in the form of extracts. In addition, it can also be used for diffusion of the Spanish film heritage by the Spanish Film Archives two years from its premiere. The producers can oppose or condition this right if they reasonably consider that it may damage the commercial exploitation of the film.

- Sweden: The Declaration of deposit by contractual obligation<sup>55</sup>, applicable for producers receiving production subsidy from 1st January 2012, foresees that "the Swedish Film Institute has the permission to use all contractually deposit auxiliary material in its daily activities". The contract also foresees the permission to migrate the deposited material onto new formats and carriers, if needed for long-term preservation and access to the film.

- Latvia: Financing contracts contain a clause which transfers the rights for non-commercial film distribution (non-exclusive license) to the National Film Center. This is allowed to distribute the film in educational institutions, libraries, festivals, Latvian film promotion events, etc. This practice is based on a mutual agreement between film producers and the National Film Centre.

The rationale behind these practices is that public investment in cultural creation should benefit tax-payers as much as possible. Firstly, film funding allows European audience to enjoy a diversified cultural offer in cinemas and other distribution channels. Once films have reached their return-on-investment, in average after 5 years after release, they usually become commercially unavailable, and therefore, invisible for the European citizen<sup>56</sup>. As explained above, ACE estimates that 85% of European film heritage is out-of-commerce. Therefore, a different way of providing benefit to tax payers can be introduced through the best practices such as those illustrated. In general, these contractual provisions allow cultural and educational use of films after their commercial life. Increased cultural and educational access to film heritage can only result in increased interest and demand of new European productions.

- In line with the 2010 Council Conclusions on film heritage, some Member States have linked film funding policy and film heritage, with a double purpose: enforce contractual deposit and facilitate cultural and educational use of funded films, in compliance with intellectual property rights.

<sup>56</sup> The American Assembly at Columbia University made the following proposal in its contribution to the first public consultation for the review of the Cinema Communication:

In order to modernize how public funding agencies conceive their mission, with an emphasis on much wider and cheaper distribution of EU movies, they proposed:

"• Making public funding contingent on creative commons commercial use licensing of the work after an initial period of commercial release (provisionally, five years). The CC license would allow works to circulate at no cost, without requiring permission from the rightsholder.

• Allowing production companies to buy out of this clause if they choose to do so (notably if a film is a hit) by paying back the funding agency."

- The extension of these good practices would ensure an effective collection of films and would facilitate the cultural and educational use of films after their commercial life.

3.12. Film heritage and copyright and related rights

3.12.1. Directive 2001/29/EC on copyright in the information society<sup>57</sup>

FHI do not usually own the rights of the material in their possession but possess such works as a function of their role as cultural depositories. In order to perform their public interest missions such as preservation, restoration and the provision of non-commercial cultural and educational access to works in their collections, film heritage institutions need in principle to seek the agreement of the right-holders.

However, Directive 2001/29/EC on copyright in the information society provides for two exceptions to this principle directly linked to the daily work of FHI. Member States are, however, free to implement them or not in their national legislation, which has led to a complex situation in the EU.

- Article 5(2)(c): This exception allows Member States to authorise acts of reproduction made by publicly accessible libraries or archives which are not for direct or indirect economic commercial advantage. This would include, for instance, the reproduction of film material in new media in order to ensure its preservation. All Member States, except Bulgaria and the UK, have reported that their national copyright legislation has implemented or it is in the process of implementing (Cyprus) the exception provided by Article 5(2)(c). However, Lithuania reports that reproduction of cinematographic works is not covered in their national law. It is unknown to which extent the transposition of this exception covers satisfactorily all European FHIs and all their type of holdings.

- Article 5(3)(n): This exception allows Member States to authorise "in situ" consultation for researchers. 12 Member States<sup>58</sup> mention in their reports that it has been included in their national legislation. In The Netherlands, it is interpreted to cover consultation in a "closed network". The situation in the remaining 15 Member States is unknown.

Article 5(3)(a) also provides for a voluntary exception for the sole purpose of illustration for teaching or scientific research. The implementation of this exception was not part of the questionnaire. A report drafted in October 2010 in the framework of the EFG project<sup>59</sup> analysed this exception in 11 Member States. It came to the conclusion that there were big discrepancies about its implementation among Member States.

All other uses require prior consent from the right-holder. FHI have reported that right clearance is an extremely time consuming and expensive task, that often prevents them from providing access to the collections.

The 2008 Green Paper on "Copyright in the knowledge economy"<sup>60</sup> opened a discussion on the scope of the exceptions. At that time, libraries and film archives expressed that these exceptions should become mandatory and their application harmonised among Member States. They should also be adapted to the digital world. The 2009 Commission Communication on "Copyright in the knowledge economy"<sup>61</sup> did not propose any further steps in this respect. In July 2011, the European Commission continued the discussion in the Green Paper on "the online distribution of audiovisual works in the European Union"<sup>62</sup>. Chapter 5.1 of the Green Paper is devoted to FHI, under the heading "Special uses and beneficiaries". It is explained that these institutions are concerned that the current EU copyright legal framework does not provide them with sufficient legal certainty to carry out their public missions of preservation and providing non-commercial cultural and educational access.

The Green Paper inquired if exceptions of Article 5(2)(c) and of Article 5(3)(n) of Directive 2001/29/EC need to be adapted in order to provide legal security to the daily practice of FHI. It also asked what other measures could be considered.

225 replies have been received to the consultation<sup>63</sup>. In its reply, ACE and The Europeana Foundation stressed the need of making the exceptions mandatory for all type of cultural institutions and adapt them to the digital world. Film producers, right holders, collecting societies and public and private broadcasters considered that the current framework of exceptions at European Union level was adequate, enabling Member States to implement appropriate exceptions at national level and/or to establish national remuneration schemes for rights holders, and therefore that no change to legislation was required. As regards the cross-border aspects of archiving and preservation, some film producers/distributors and one Member State considered that evidence would be needed before legislative action should be considered at EU level. This should include an examination of the current system of non-mandatory exceptions to determine whether differences among Member States have a negative effect on the Internal Market. BEUC (consumers association) would like to re-open the discussion on exceptions and limitations in order to restore the balance between exclusive rights and general interest.

The Europeana Foundation and ACE called for new exceptions, or the clarification of existing exceptions, to enable in all Member States:

- Cultural publications: FHIs are allowed to publish in analogue format non-film material like photos and posters, when connected to a film work for illustration purposes. This right should be explicitly extended to online publishing and other digital formats.
- Quotation: online publication of cinematographic excerpts up to two minutes.
- Online access to low resolution material for archival, study, research and education purposes.
- Format shifting for digital preservation.
- Non-commercial research.
- Educational exception for distance-learning.

They asked for exceptions to be formulated in technology-neutral way (online and onsite).

A follow-up to the consultation is planned at the beginning of 2013.

The DAEFH study explains that an exception was introduced in Section 108 (h) of US copyright law<sup>64</sup> allowing public non-profit institutions to “reproduce, distribute, display, or perform in facsimile or digital form” a work that is in its last 20 years of any term of copyright and it is not commercially available. The explicit rationale behind this exception was the acknowledgment that: “Creative works inspire new creations, which in turn inspire others, but this “engine of free expression” does not function unless the works so created are made available to the public”.

The Digital Agenda for Europe<sup>65</sup> called for the simplification of copyright clearance, management and cross-border licensing. In the 2011 IPR Strategy the Commission committed to examining a range of issues, including whether Directive 2001/29/EC on copyright in the information society needs to be updated. This commitment was restated in the January 2012 E-Commerce Communication.

3.12.2. Orphan works

Orphan works are works that are still protected by copyright but the rights holders of which cannot be located to obtain copyright permissions.

According to the results of an ACE survey conducted in 2010, 21% of the film deposited in the ACE member archives is considered to be orphan works. The figures are confirmed by the results of the rights clearing process carried out by the EYE Film Institute in The Netherlands in the framework of the Images for the Future Project. Those orphan works cannot be restored, digitised or used for educational or cultural purposes.

The European Commission made a proposal<sup>66</sup> for a European Parliament and Council Directive on certain permitted uses of orphan works in May 2011. The Orphan Works Directive (2012/28/EU) was adopted on 4 October 2012. It covers, among other works and subject matters, cinematographic works contained in the collection of FHI<sup>67</sup>. Firstly, the Directive contains rules on how to identify orphan works. It provides that the user has to conduct a diligent search to find the holder(s) of copyright and related rights. Secondly, it establishes that if the diligent search does not yield the identity or location of the rights holder(s), the work shall be recognized as an orphan work. This status shall then, by virtue of mutual recognition, be valid across the European Union. Thirdly, it establishes the uses that can be made of the orphan works and the conditions for such uses. The Commission expects this Directive to make a major contribution to the development of various European digital library initiatives and their accessibility for everyone throughout the European Union.

In addition, the European Commission is negotiating a proposal for a "Framework for an EU-wide Audiovisual Orphan Works Registry" (FORWARD) under Call 6 of the CIP-

ICT PSP program<sup>68</sup>. Its objective is to create a semi-automated system for assessing rights status of audiovisual works in the EU. The system will gather and process information coming from several national clearing centers located in FHIs. It will also maintain a registry of audiovisual orphans and registry of queries. The project involves 10 FHI. The estimated EU contribution is EUR 2.1 million. If signed, the project would start in 2013 and run for 3 years.

3.12.3. Public domain

The public domain is generally defined as consisting of works that are either ineligible for copyright protection or which have expired or waived copyrights. Copy or use public domain works does not require the prior consent of a right holder.

The DAEFH study compared the situation of rights in the US in relation to the EU. One of the conclusions was that the US legislation contains a clear definition of public domain works in the US: all works published before 1923 are in the public domain.

Such a cut-off date does not exist in Europe, which adds to the complexity of determining the status of a work from a rights point of view.

3.12.4. Contractual and voluntary approaches

In its reply to the 2011 Green Paper, the Europeana Foundation pointed out that 2% of content to which Europeana gives access is audiovisual and audiovisual content ranks highly in user's preferences. In their view, the reason is the significant legal barriers that FHI face: clearing rights for making this audiovisual content available online in a cross-border way is very difficult in practice because of the high complexity and therefore cost of right clearance<sup>69</sup> in relation to the budget of these public funded cultural institutions. ACE underlined that only 15 % of Europe's film heritage is commercially exploited, and therefore, available for the European citizen.

The following measures are proposed by ACE, Europeana and individual FHIs to solve the situation:

- The Commission should continue its support for a stakeholder's dialogue for the digitisation and online availability of out-of-commerce audiovisual works. The aim would be to facilitate the digitisation and making available on-line of copy-right protected but not commercially available film and audiovisual works. This could potentially cover the 85% of Europe's film heritage that is estimated to be out-of-commerce, and therefore, invisible for the European citizen.

- Legislative backing for cross-border effect in case of voluntary agreements.

<sup>69</sup> The high cost is due to the complexity of rights situation of audiovisual works and the divergences in copy right legislation among Member States.

SACD<sup>70</sup> (Société des auteurs et compositeurs dramatiques) proposes to solve the situation by collective agreements between FHI and rights holders in order to allow FHI to exploit works online. The agreements concluded in France between the National Audiovisual Institute (INA), on the one hand, and SACD and SCAM on the other allow INA to provide on line access to audiovisual material.

A good practice to report is the agreement between the Swedish Film Institute and the largest Swedish right holder, AB Svensk Filmindustri. Following this agreement, no screening fee is charged for screenings at the cinematheque and for the use of film-related material for cultural purposes.

- The availability of film heritage should be developed and negotiated in compliance with intellectual property rights, without prejudice to fair remuneration for the right holders and without interfering with the normal use of the film.
- There is an open discussion on the extent to which exceptions to copyright and related rights need to be clarified or adjusted to enable FHIs to fulfil their public interest mission in the digital environment.
- Member States' implementation of the Orphan Works Directive will facilitate that orphan works in FHI are digitised and available for cultural and educational purposes.
- The Commission will continue to support a stakeholder's dialogue for the digitisation and online availability of out-of-commerce film works.

4. CONCLUSIONS

As a consequence of the digital revolution, the definition of film has become independent of its production process, the recording medium and its distribution channel. Therefore, FHI have to evolve towards hybrids archives, taking care both of analogue film collections and digital or digitised collections. New technologies offer enormous possibilities for cultural, educational and recreational access to film heritage, as well as new business models for commercial exploitation. Nevertheless, this report and the DAEFH study show that only a minority of Member States have adapted to the situation. Therefore, European digital film heritage is at risk of being lost, and the opportunities offered by the digital revolution are largely being missed.

In order to foster Member States' action in a coordinated way and to complement those aspects of the Film Heritage Recommendation linked to the digital era, the Commission is considering a proposal on digital film, to be presented in the first semester of 2013.

The Commission will continue to monitor the application of the Film Heritage Recommendation. Member States are asked to send their 4th implementation report by November 2013. A questionnaire will be circulated mid-2013 to facilitate the reporting.

The Commission will also continue to promote the exchange of best practices in the framework of an annual meeting of the Cinema Expert Group / Subgroup Film Heritage<sup>71</sup>.

MEMBER STATE	(6) Long-term strategy for national film heritage
Austria	- Austrian Film Archive: annual strategy plans for restoration (analogue+digital) and opening-up projects; Austrian Film Museum: defines long-term strategies in the areas of digitisation, restoration, education; detailed measures are set out in the annual work programmes.
Belgium	- RFA elaborates its own strategy for preservation and restoration for analogue and digital material.
Belgium : French Community	- The Preservation and Exploitation of Cultural Heritage Plan, adopted by the government in October 2007, covers the French Community's film heritage.
Belgium : Flemish Community
Bulgaria	- BNF: 'Development Strategy to 2014', prepared and submitted to the Ministry of Culture and updated annually.
Cyprus	- Not yet.
Czech Rep.	- Plans to digitize the national film heritage (2007-2013) have been drawn up. Annual restorations and digitisation plans for film material, posters, photographs, periodicals. An extensive questionnaire has been drawn up for the national strategy on digitizing cultural artefacts. A list has been drawn up of the 200 most important films (1898-1993) that should be digitized.
Denmark	- Not formally, but there is a practice established.
Estonia	- Preservation strategy of the National Archives of Estonia also includes film heritage. Each year an annual work schedule for the Film Archives is adopted.

MEMBER STATE	(6) Long-term strategy for national film heritage
Finland	- KAVA has started preparing its digitisation strategy and participation in the development and implementation of the National Digital Library (2007-2011) project.
France	- The conservation and restoration plan for heritage films enables the CNC to fund the restoration of collections deposited with national heritage institutions. 2 major strategic objectives: 1. the national inventory of all films available on French territory and legal deposits for entirely digital films.
Germany	- Top-level political initiatives have been triggered by the Commission's recommendations on film heritage.  - As regards preserving the film heritage retrospectively, the only option available is damage limitation. Strategy talks on the handling of digital film formats in the context of the basic problem that adequate long-term archiving on a technically reliable and financially feasible scale is not yet available. Restoration work continues.  - Development of a national regulatory framework on orphan works ongoing.
Greece	- No.
Hungary	- MNFA used to draw up annual strategic plans on film restoration, digit of films digitisation and education. With the establishment of the MaNDA, a long-term strategy is under preparation.
Ireland	- Currently fundraising to build new preservation vaults.
Italy	N.C.
Latvia	- No.
Lithuania	- In the new version of the Cinema Act, the collection and preservation of film heritage is a priority for State funding.
Luxemburg	- Yes.

MEMBER STATE	(6) Long-term strategy for national film heritage
Malta	- The first step was the launch of the Cultural Policy with plans to implement specific strategies with regard to film heritage.
Netherlands	- In the Netherlands EYE and Sound and Vision have set down their strategies in 'collection policy plans'. Collections are stored in repositories under specific climatic conditions. - Temperature and humidity are critical for the preservation of (nitrate, acetate, polyester, magnetic, etc.) films, paper, photographs, equipment, objects and digital media. The ideal conditions for the various parts of a collection may vary. Passive (or preventive) preservation seeks to preserve material for hundreds of years and to maintain access to (digital and analogue) sources. - Under the aegis of the Netherlands Coalition for Digital Preservation (NCDD) EYE and Sound and Vision are currently working together with partner institutions on a joint strategy for multiple long-term storage of digital files.
Poland	N.C.
Portugal	- The CP-MC has had, since the late 1990s, a long-term strategy for conserving and valuing film heritage and it draws up annual conservation plans. It also has a strategy regarding digitalisation - dating from before the Cinema Digital standard was established. - There is a need to set up and implement an action plan for digital cinema (works created and shown only in digital format) and a digitalisation plan in accordance with a new Cinema Digital standard, and these plans are lacking the development of infrastructure at the CP-MC which does not yet exist.

TABLE 14 – SUGGESTED FURTHER EU ACTION

MEMBER STATE	Suggested action
Austria	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>- The exchange of expert knowledge at EU level should continue. Austria will continue to play an active role by sending its experts to participate in such exchanges.</li> <li>- Restoration laboratories in Europe, which could offer the national institutions favorable conditions in terms of prices, could be addressed as well.</li> <li>- Adoption and implementation of the Directive concerning the permitted uses of orphan works.</li></ul>
Belgium	N.C.
Belgium : French Community	N.C.
Belgium : Flemish Community	- European action should be taken on harmonizing copyright and protecting the rights of titleholders with special attention being paid to exceptions.
Bulgaria	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>- The term ‘non-commercial exploitation’ should be given a wider scope with regard to the circulation of European films in the EU, for instance retrospectives of old films should be free to move within the EU from one festival to the next.</li> <li>- EU Monitoring of action taken at the national level by each Member State in relation to film heritage.</li> <li>- EU should draft a recommendation on film heritage preservation with a specific time-limit.</li></ul>
Cyprus	- No.

MEMBER STATE	Suggested action
Czech Rep.	- It is absolutely essential to resolve the issue of copyright at European level. The issue of access to collections should be tackled in a harmonized way at pan-European level.
Denmark
Estonia	- No proposals.
Finland	- Legislation on copyright should be developed to meet the needs of the new digital environment. The use of orphan works in film archives should be made lawful, including reference material.  - Performance royalties for music used in films in archives distributed online need to be regulated uniformly.
France
Germany
Greece	N.C.
Hungary	- Providing funding at Community level for the preservation of European film heritage, through the MEDIA programme or by establishing a European Film Archiving Fund.
Ireland	- Mandatory recommendations at EU level to make film heritage a priority as regards to funding.
Italy	N.C.
Latvia	N.C.

MEMBER STATE	Suggested action
Lithuania	- Resolving of copyright issues; exchange of knowledge between EU film heritage professionals and creation of common EU standards for digitization of film heritage.
Luxemburg	-Promoting the use of European standards for interoperability of databases. -Consideration given to the long-term preservation of digitally produced works.
Malta	- Exchange best practices. - Further explore use of social medial and access to film heritage.
Netherlands	- To concentrate on harmonizing legislation as regards the copyright protection of cinematographic worksin particular extension of existing exceptions in order to encourage digitisation and long-term availability of protected works.
Poland	- Extension of the mandatory deposit to have copies provided also to regional film archives, at least in the case of films related to a given region. - Enforcement of the legal deposit.
Portugal	- Creation of a unified technical-scientific research centre and a possible unified digital conservation service amongst the EU Member States. - Necessity to promote a joint strategy for all film heritage, including the original analogue heritage, thus the professional skills and photochemical technologies have to be also maintained.
Romania	- Further harmonisation of copy-right.

MEMBER STATE	Suggested action

Slovakia	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- In line with proposals made by other Member States (UK, Malta, Latvia, Hungary, Germany and Ireland), Slovakia considers that MEDIA programme capacities could be used to support educational activities, cooperation, research and other activities related to audiovisual heritage.</li> <li>- In line with the findings of the study presented on 'Challenges of the digital era for film heritage institutions' and proposals made by several Member States (France, Poland and Romania), Slovakia considers that amongst the most acute problems in response to which action could be taken at EU level are the development of standards and research in the field of digital preservation of audiovisual heritage.</li> <li>- The above-mentioned study also pointed out problems related to the gradual disappearance of film laboratory and film material production infrastructure. These challenges cannot be met adequately at the national level and all EU Member States will also need to address them. Therefore, like other EU Member States (Germany and Sweden), Slovakia would welcome action being taken in this area at EU level.</li> </ul>
Slovenia	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- Slovenia supports the harmonisation of the legal framework to increase public access to important archive film heritage.</li> </ul>
